CANYONVIEW CAMP

RENEWING THE SPACE

... Where Spiritual Renewal Takes Place

If these walls could talk

they would tell of God's transforming power displayed in countless young lives over the past 40 years.

Echoes of laughter, songs, and stories reverberate within these old walls where God has used loving counselors to touch the hearts of children with the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

It's Where Real
Ministry Happens

Jeff had a very sceptical look.

Nearly all week he kept challenging the Bible's teaching on God and creation until Friday night. We were gathered around the camp fire when Jeff said the unexpected:

"I learned that you really can believe in God."

Every counselor yearns for that defining moment in ministry. In most cases day to day faithfulness makes even a bigger difference: helping a camper find a lost article, understand a problem, get through an activity or reconcile with a friend. That's where cabin use takes its toll and where we need your support.

Q. What's it like to lead a cabin with my child in it?

A. "Sparrow's" testimony highlights some ways in which God works through a small group cabin setting:

"During Teen Camp, Satan really attacked the whole cabin. Nothing I was teaching my girls seemed to sink in or even matter. But then on Wednesday, God did a mighty work. The girls not only understood what I was teaching, but I was touched. That evening two of my girls privately asked to pray for their lives. Then we went in and the other girls asked me to read them to sleep. I began reading the gospel of John, and continued for the rest of the week. It's amazing that God took a broken vessel like me and found a use for it."

Q. Why are you adding two cabins and remodeling the others?

A. Now the cabins need a face-lift. Imagine your guest room serving ten guests a week for forty years. Rotting wood, leaks, and the effects of time have left them run-down. Will you help bring a fresh look to a valuable part of your child's life?

Canyonview's cabins date from the early to mid-sixties. The founder, Ernie Campbell built them well, in fact one electrician said they were overbuilt. But time and use has taken its toll and six of the eight cabins haven't had adequate remodeling for nearly 40 years.

Some of the problems are: leaky roofs, bowed paneling, weakened roof structures, broken bed frames, torn mattresses, the list goes on

Q. What are you going to do?

A. Inside

Initially, one bunk will come out of each of the existing cabins and become the 'new' beds for two new cabins.

The old cabins will keep the same basic floor plan; their walls will be fixed and there are plans for new curtains, window trim, entrance tiling, area carpeting and light fixtures as well as bunk beds and mattresses.

A. Outside

Expectations of our guests & parents have changed over the past forty years. The demand for full plumbing in every cabin is persistent. No one likes to trek into the cold, dark night just to get to the restroom. Construction of a new, enlarged septic system outside of the canyon will pave the way for both adding restrooms to each cabin and for adding new cabins in the future.

Q. How long will it take?

A. We plan to accomplish the project in phases. Phase I covers the interior of the old cabins. Phase II goes for septic system upgrades. Phase III will add restrooms to six of the cabins. The last phase will add two completely new cabins with restrooms.

We’ll make the improvements as money comes in. A cabin by cabin approach will keep enough cabins in service to provide continuing ministry during the remodeling process.

A phase-by-phase cost estimate is on the back panel. We hope the Lord is stirring your heart to participate.

Q. How much will it cost?

A. The following numbers are estimates for each phase. Exterior remodeling is already finished on four of the cabins.

Phase I	Renovation for 6 cabins:	26,300.00
Phase II	Restroom Additions	32,000.00
Phase III	Sceptic System	25,000.00
Phase IV	Two new cabins	24,600.00
	Total	$107,900.00
